

Year 3 Writing

Lesson 5

LO: To apply skills taught in independent writing

The Twits by Roald Dahl http://www.stonehome.net.au/4red/TwitsHTML/index.htm .

Make sure you have read up to the end of the book, chapters 28 and 29: The Monkeys escape and The Twits Get The Shrinks.

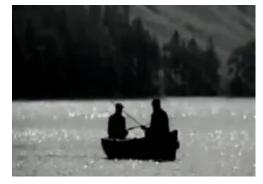

This week we have reminded ourselves of how to use a/an and of how to punctuate direct speech correctly. We have thought carefully, throughout this unit, about the author's powerful use of language.

Today you are going to write your own story in response to this short clip about two grumpy-looking men and a silly trick: https://www.literacyshed.com/teeth.html

You can retell the events in the film, or if makes you think of your own story, you can write about that. You could tell it from the viewpoint of one or both of the men, as someone watching them, or even pretend to be the fish. It is your story, it is up to you.

Try to copy the style of Roald Dahl

- Use alliteration
- Include exaggerated language

Success Criteria:

- 1. Use a variety of punctuation.
- 2. Organise the story into paragraphs.
- 3. Try to punctuate direct speech correctly.
- 4. Avoid repeating the same words.
- 5. Try to copy Roald Dahl's style: alliteration, exaggeration, powerful descriptions

Example

In the biggest, deepest lake in the mountains, two miserable old men sat in a little bobbing boat, trying to catch fish for their tea. They didn't really like each other, but as they were so grouchy they had no other friends so they just had to make do. One was called Grumpy, and the other was called Very Grumpy. You have never seen such a moody pair of muppets in your life!

Extra Challenge

Try to include a colon to introduce a list and use the power of three to add more detail to descriptions.

LO: To write a simple story

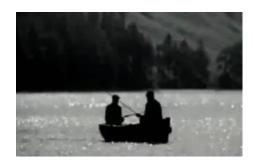

The Twits by Roald Dahl http://www.stonehome.net.au/4red/TwitsHTML/index.htm.

Make sure you have shared up to the end of the book, chapters 28 and 29: The Monkeys escape and The Twits Get The Shrinks.

Task:

Watch this short clip. https://www.literacyshed.com/teeth.html
You going to write at least 3 sentences to make a story about the trick with the teeth. Draw pictures to go with your story.

Example:

Two grumpy old men were out fishing on a silver lake. One man put his teeth into a fish's mouth and it looked funny. The other man took the fishy teeth and threw them in the lake and they disappeared forever.

Success Criteria:

- 1. Think about what the men did.
- 2. Write the main things that happened in clear sentences.
- 3. Use full-stops and capital letters.
- 4. You can draw pictures.

Extra Challenge:

Include powerful words to describe.

The Monkeys Escape

That evening, Muggle-Wump and his family went up to the big wood on top of the hill, and in the tallest tree of all they built a marvellous tree-house. All the birds, especially the big ones, the crows and rooks and magpies, made their nests around the tree-house so that nobody could see it from the ground.

'You can't stay up here for ever, you know,' the Roly-Poly Bird said.

'Why not?' asked Muggle-Wump. 'It's a lovely place.'

'Just you wait till the winter comes,' the Roly-Poly Bird said. 'Monkeys don't like cold weather, do they?'

'They most certainly don't!' cried Muggle-Wump. 'Are the winters so very cold over here?'

'It's all snow and ice,' said the Roly-Poly Bird. 'Sometimes it's so cold a bird will wake up in the morning with his feet frozen to the bough that he's been roosting on.'

Then what shall we do?' cried Muggle-Wump. 'My family will all be deep-freezed!'

'No, they won't,' said the Roly-Poly Bird. 'Because when the first leaves start falling from the trees in the autumn, you can all fly home to Africa with me.'

'Don't be ridiculous,' Muggle-Wump said. 'Monkeys can't fly.'

'You can sit on my back,' said the Roly-Poly Bird. I shall take you one at a time. You will travel by the Roly-Poly Super Jet and it won't cost you a penny!'

And down here in the horrid house, Mr and Mrs Twit are still stuck upside down to the floor of the living-room.

'It's all your fault!' yelled Mr Twit, thrashing his legs in the air. 'You'rethe one, you ugly old cow, who went hopping around shouting "We're upside down! We're upside down!""

'Andyou're the one who said to stand on our heads so we'd be the right way up, you whiskery old warthog!' screamed Mrs Twit. 'Now we'll never get free! We're stuck here for ever!'

'Youmay be stuck here for ever,' said Mr Twit. 'But not me! I'm going to get away!'

Mr Twit wriggled and squirmed, and he squiggled and wormed, and he twisted and turned, and he choggled and churned, but the sticky glue held him to the floor just as tightly as it had once held the poor birds in The Big Dead Tree. He was still as upside down as ever, standing on his head.

But heads are not made to be stood upon. If you stand on your head for a very long time, a horrid thing happens, and this was where Mr Twit got his biggest shock of all. With so much weight on it from up above, his head began to get squashed into his body.

Quite soon, it had disappeared completely, sunk out of sight in the fatty folds of his flabby neck.

Trmshrinking! burbled Mr Twit.

'So am I!' cried Mrs Twit.

'Help me! Save me! Call a doctor!' yelled Mr Twit. 'I'm gettingthe dreaded shrinks!'

And so he was. Mrs Twit was gettingthe dreaded shrinks, too! And this time it wasn't a fake. It was the real thing!

Their headsshrank into their necks . . .

Then their necks beganshrinking into their bodies . . . And their bodies beganshrinking into their legs . . .

And their legs beganshrinking into their feet . . .

And one week later, on a nice sunny afternoon, a man called Fred came round to read the gas meter. When nobody answered the door, Fred peeped into the house and there he saw, on the floor of the living-room, two bundles of old clothes, two pairs of shoes and a walking-stick. There was nothing more left in this world of Mr and Mrs Twit.

And everyone, including Fred, shouted . . . 'hooray!'
