

Task (with links):

- 1) Read the two poems below.
 - 2) Choose words from the poems and organise them into the word bank under the correct headings, you could copy and paste the word bank or copy it into your home learning book.
 - 3) Write your own Volcano poem, using the vocabulary in the word bank that you have created. You could write a story style poem or a kenning poem. Can you describe each style?
- EXT: Can you write a poem about a volcano using only 20 words?

Adverbs	Verbs	Adjectives	Nouns

Story Poem

Pick up your towels and escape from the beach.
Try not to scream or panic the kids.
It might be the last time you see this old town,
Gather your loved ones and head for the car.
The streets will be busy, we'll have to go far.
Say your goodbyes and wish all good luck.
Release the animals that are trapped in their huts.
Pick up your feet, there's no time to frown.
The volcano has erupted, fire and lava flooding down.

Kenning Poem

A rumour of a rumble announcing,
The imminence of the beast erupting.
A menacing hiss confirms the announcement.
Beneath the houses, the ground trembling.
Above the trees, the crater grumbling.
The last shred of hope, makes its disappearance.
Within the belly, molten rock boiling.
Beyond the beast, people cowering.
A thunderous boom proceeds the explosion!
For miles, the sky with ash filling.
For a moment, but silence and heat, nothing.