Digital News Autumn 2024

Start of year

In our digital age, ensuring our children's online safety is more important than ever. Please remind your kids to be cautious about sharing personal information and to use privacy settings on social media. It's also crucial to have open conversations about the importance of respectful online behaviour and recognising potential online threats. Additionally, fostering a good digital balance is essential. Encourage your children to create, not just consume, by engaging in activities like coding, digital art, or writing. This helps them develop a positive relationship with technology and reinforces the value of being proactive in their online experiences.

By staying informed and involved, we can help our children navigate the internet safely, responsibly, and creatively.
