

Lesson 1

LO: To identify text types: instructions

We are learning about writing instructions as our non-fiction unit of writing for the rest of this half term.

Task 1

Look on your bookshelves and make a set of fiction books and non-fiction books.

Can you make a third set of instructional texts? These are a special kind of non-fiction writing. You might find: cookery books, craft books, Lego construction, instruction manuals and instructions for games etc. These texts instruct (tell you how) to do something.

Task 2

1. Look at a set of instructions to make something (online or in a book).
2. Read the instructions carefully and think about the word choices the author has made.
3. Think about the lay-out.
4. Follow the instructions to make the finished product.
5. Send me a picture of what you made.

If you can't make up your mind or find anything good, follow the instructions at the end of today's work.

Success Criteria:

1. Look at examples of instructions.
2. Choose a set of instructions to follow.
3. Follow the instructions to make or do something.
4. Take photos or draw pictures as evidence.
